

I sent a comment yesterday but neglected to mention that the constitution doesn't empower the feds to get involved with such minor things (their power is limited, remember?) and the states don't need the feds to get involved. They can do it themselves if they want to.